ART MONTH COLLECTOR'S SPACE 2018

Curator Kate Britton clearly had a streak of inspiration when she was asked to concoct something for the 2018 Collector's Space at MAY SPACE. As artistic director of Art Month Sydney 2018, Britton will delve into the personal collections of carefully selected artists and practitioners who include Abdul Abdullah, Tony Albert, Tess Allas, Daniel Mudie Cunningham, and Emma Price. Those included all have stellar careers and long-term commitments to the artists they have supported. "Each collector has a deep and enduring connection with the local arts community and the artists in their collections, which reflect these relationships," says Britton.

"This year's Collector's Space will shine a light on these stories of connection, engagement, and the journey of an art work from studio to collection and beyond," she says. "It will showcase contemporary collections that traverse an exciting diversity of artists, practices and mediums, and share insights into the incredible works on display, each of which has a life of their own beyond their present 'owners'."
